A VALUABLE MILL FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his MILL, known by the name of Cliff ton Mill, within two and an half miles of Dumfries, on the waters of Quantico, which is a constant stream as any in this part of the coun- try, and in an exceeding healthy situation; very conveniently situated to a fine wheat country, not being more than half a mile out of the way, in going to Dumfries, from the main road lead- ing from Fauquier Court-House, Centerville, &c. (and by some thought not any out of the way at all) and a very good road to it. There are, if the purchaser chooses, 227½ acres of land which may go with the mill, (except one acre which will be reserved) or a smaller quantity as may be agreed on. The mill is an over-shot, with a wheel of 20 feet 9 inches and 4 feet head, with two pair of stones. One pair of French burrs of 5 feet, the other of Cologne, with every appa- ratus necessary for carrying on merchant business to the best advantage. The mill house is fifty feet long and twenty seven feet wide, two stories high, with a small kiln for drying corn, toge- ther with a barn, stable, cow house and lumber house, convenient to the mill. A convenient dwelling house, (not quite finished) with a kit- chen, meat and corn house; the whole of which have been built within 7 years past. There are two very thriving young orchards of peach and other fruit trees. It was supposed, had not the frost killed the fruit this spring, upwards of 100 gallons of brandy might have been made from them. Should the whole of the land be requir- ed with the mill, there is another small house, kitchen and meat house, at a short distance from the former.

The situation of this property must render it a desirable acquisition to any person inclined to engage in this line of business; particularly so as it is situated so near tide water. It is deemed unnecessary to say any thing more respecting the premises, as it is presumed any person inclined to purchase would wish to see them. Nothing would induce me to part with this valuable prop- erty, but the pressing demands against me which I am anxious to discharge, therefore a great bargain may be expected. Any further information may be known on application to.

SOLICITUDE.

HENRY.

Why, Strephon, when nature is gay,
So pensive reclin'd on the ground?
And why is thy crook thrown away,
While thy flocks are all wand'ring around?
Thy sorrow ere long will consign,
Thy form to the cold, dreary tomb;
Forgive, if I cannot divine,
Why thy features are cover'd with gloom.

True, much may embitter our days,
If we do not to wisdom attend,
But if we abide in her ways,
Our hearts will our actions commend;
And then tho' the world may appear,
As willing to treat with disdain;
Unaw'd we may smile thro' a tear,
And pity their wish to give pain.

Tho' fortune regards with a frown,
She cannot give source to thy woes;
Too futile by far, to cast down,
The heart where humility grows;
And what is this world but a vale,
No wife man would wish his abode?
Tho' blown by prosperity's gale,
We faint, and we die on the road.

How silly, 'twould be for to sigh,
For baubles so soon left behind;
For 'tis not in wealth to supply,
To give the most elegant mind;
I've seen them in silver'd brocade,
Who nought of the jewel possess'd;
While others in poverty's shade,
Has with it most amply been blest.

And, I'd sooner be Henry the swain,
Possess'd of that treasure alone,
Than sport a rich liv'ry and train,
To rule as a King on a throne.

I would sooner my Strephon, be thee,
And watch with thy handful of sheep,
Than proud and unfeeling to be,
On a couch of soft velvet to sleep.
Come banish, dear Strephon, this gloom,
Thou'ra equal I trust to the part;
The cheerfulness thou canst assume,
O let it arise from the heart!

STREPHON.

Nay, Henry, 'tis pleasant I know,
To speak when the heart is at rest,
And those not familiar with woe,
But seldom feel for the distress'd;
No frowns of the world do I mourn,
With it's smiles, I have nothing to do,
And should meet an ungen'rous return,
If I for it's favors should sue.

Ungen'rous ah me! did I say?
The thought alone tortures my heart,
Go Henry, dear Henry away,
Nor bear in my sorrows a part!
The heart can experience I find,
A pleasure the moment it aches,
By knowing the pangs of the mind,
No friend sympathying partakes.

Yet, what could I've done to offend?
I ask, but I never shall know—
I could not have injur'd a friend,
Who never did injure a foe!

Yet Rupert whose flocks I have kept,
While my own has been wand'ring
afraid,
When careless or weary he slept,
In summers long sultry day—

Now looks with an air of disdain,
On the friend that he smil'd on before,

But oh if he knew but my pain,
I am sure he would do so no more!
I weep—but ah me, if he knew,
How dear were his comforts to me,
My sheep would not stray from my view,
Nor their shepherd complaining to thee!

For the youth, is as mild as the breeze,
That wakes us at dawn of the day,
By fanning the sycamore trees,
And gentle as lambskins at play.
Tho' my sheep have so little a range,
While he has rich droves to secure,
That cannot have wrought the sad change;
The thought would be death to endure!

Oh no! I will not wrong the heart,
That nature had meant should despise,
The tinsel, the gewgaws of art,
Which the world does so generally prize;

Should the stamp be eras'd from his breast,

That heaven engrav'd at this birth,
Unmov'd he might view the distress'd,
Or trample on indigent worth.

HENRY.

Dear Strephon, but little you know,
Of the ways of the world it should seem,
The poor may not meet with a foe,
But merely of friendship they dream.
The object that some can affect,
To treat with a smile when they please,
Meets as oft with a look of neglect,
Which the happy can give at their ease.

STREPHON.

Yet, Henry, I feel there's a tie,
Which binds me to Rupert and thee,
For either, methinks I could die,
Tho' neither should sorrow for me!

HENRY.

For an object, intwin'd round the heart,
The bosom that's gen'rous might bleed,
But sure it would puzzle thy art,
To find one deserving the deed.

STREPHON.

Come, Henry, and reach me my crook,
I will not a phantom pursue,
Since Hope has so cruel forsook,
From to day I will bid her adieu.

MIRA.

From the CHARLESTON COURIER.

Observations on Doctor BAKER's Letter.
CONTINUED.

HAVING shewn that in one leading article of the Doctor's charges against Paine, the party which he espouses, and the person he applauds, are completely implicated, we now beg leave to ask him whether in another article, to wit, that of infidelity, they can be held guiltless? And whether all the infidels in the union, particularly the disciples of the deistical preacher at New York, and the editor and readers of the Temple of Reason, are not all to a man warm advocates, indeed zealots, in the cause of anti-federalism and the President? No people know better than those do, who are friendly to them and to their principles, or what measures are most favourable to their views: A question then arises which almost answers itself: How does it happen, that without a single exception, all the Jacobins, revolutionists, disorganizers and infidels, whether home bred or foreign, in America, are all strenuous abettors and advocates of the party now in power?

We would wish this question first to be determinately resolved by every man in the union, "Is America a christian country? If this be answered in the affirmative, then we will say, that it is the duty of her chief magistrate to discountenance, in every way that lies in his power, all men who openly profess, and still more those who endeavour to propagate infidelity. If he does not, he is so far guilty of misprision of that crime against the religion of the country.

Has our President done this? Has he not on the contrary been instrumental to the bringing of the author of the Age of Reason, that very man whom the Doctor so justly inveighs against for his irreligion, to this country? Indeed the Doctor seems to be so perfectly aware of this, that he endeavours to give a colour to Mr. Jefferson's letter to Paine, and to extract from it the sting which it carries against that gentleman; but a more lame or frivolous excuse, or a falser colour, can scarcely be imagined. It is said to be only a permission to Paine to come. If Mr. Paine could come to America without the President's permission, his granting that permission was useless, and meant nothing: If he could not come without the President's permission it was, upon the Doctor's own shewing, wrong to grant it to him. But setting aside this consideration, was it not something more than granting Paine permission to come to America, to applaud him and his labours, and to pray that they might be continued; for with that prayer did the President conclude his letter of invitation to Tom Paine.

Thus in the very same letter, in which the Doctor denounces and anathematizes Paine for his love of revolution and his hostility to religion, he eulogizes the person who applauds Paine, and prays for a continuance of his labours. Is this consistent? Is it not the very essence of faction, which decides by men and not by measures; which says that this or that is guilt in John, but in James is virtue.

But surely the Doctor's usual sagacity forsook him, when he introduced the names of Washington and Callender into a laudatory epistle of Mr. Jefferson. Does the Doctor recollect the payment of Callender's fine, and the pecuniary gifts of Mr. Jefferson to the author of the Prospect before Us?—He certainly does, for he exemplifies the ingratitude of Paine and Callender, by a mutual comparison: "Paine (says he) is a Callender to Washington and Callender a Paine to Jefferson." On what account then were those favours shewn to Mr. Callender? Does not the Doctor know that this object of Mr. Jefferson's favour and benevolence, pro tempore, was the most bitter slanderer of Washington, and the author of the following paragraphs.

Washington.—"For years together the Grand Lama of Federal adoration, the immaculate divinity of Mount Vernon, approved of and subscribed every one of their (paper jibbers) blackest measures."

"This speech completely unmasks the scandalous hypocrisy of Washington."—"Mr. Adams has only completed the scene of ignominy which Mr. Washington began."

"He could not have committed a more pure and not violation of his oath."—"By his own account he was twice a traitor." The extravagant popularity of this citizen reflects the utmost ridicule on the discernment of America."

He authorized he rabely and r n fh own army.

On what fair grounds then can the Doctor at once censure Paine for slandering Washington and praise the person who awarded Callender for reviling, in the words above quoted, that illustrious character.

From the American Daily Advertiser.

A short view of a proposed plan of the union of all parties, &c.

Addressed to THOMAS JEFFERSON, President of the United States of North America.

By Pastor Americannus, Agent to "the First Company of American Shepherds."

Philadelphia, March 31, 1801.

CITIZEN PRESIDENT!

This pacific plan is called the Shepherd's Financial System; the reason is because it is calculated to raise a revenue for every christian church, and for every commonwealth in the United States of North America, which would abolish taxation and church collections, i. e. tithes, &c. It is plain, therefore, that it is the incumbent duty of every good Christian to promote it, and also the duty of our general government to legislate in favor of it, and to protect it.

The times require the union and exertions of every citizen, to act as if the success of our national union depended on his action, we, the American Shepherds, invite you, by these observations, to act in concert with us. Let us hope the shepherd's arguments will force the way into every one's mind and prevail. Let our beloved president of the United States ponder well the Shepherd's Financial System, and if he see nothing in it repugnant to the idea of republicanism, let him adopt it, and re commend it to the house of representatives in congress met, or correct it.

The Shepherd's Financial System, being a proposed plan of a coalescence &c. under which the strength of the general government may be drawn together, the interest of America secured, and our dollars kept in their natural circulation at home: or as the phrase is, a plan of a proposed re-union between democrats, &c. In justice therefore to the character of America, and that the said parties may see and judge for themselves, they are here called to the consideration of the following plan. In consideration of which, it is observable, that one Spanish dollar each would compromise the disagreement between them, and give each of them a right to a share in the First company of the American Shepherds.

The plan of a proposed coalescence &c. A subscription is opened to enlarge the First Company of the American Shepherds, and to raise 9 millions of American sheep, which number of ewes would make American wool one of our staple commodities, and enable our merchants to exchange, or barter our wool for European woollen dressey, which would gain the balance of European trade and that number of sheep would much fertilize fields.

To constitute a capital of the American nation for shares therein, for each, payable at the option, or on demand is proposed.

Any state, commonwealth, partnership, society, church, or company of Americans, may subscribe for the or they think proper.

Perhaps no moment of proper time the present wool trade in America. Following observations may you before, if not, I trust them such attention as to you to deserve.

1. That in England, the basis of agriculture farmer there keeps no flock his destiny. See John S. Farmer, &c. page 186.

2. Again He says that are kept at the least to the farmer, and will most any ground, and ought to be preferred to cattle. Idem. page 266.

3. That any number of the utility of sheep, for its present strength to these important little of which their judges and on sacks of wool. See the Advertiser, &c. date number 5957, printed by Septimus Claypoole.

4. That an English sheep says, in effect, one domestic creature, who profit to man than sheep is the chief object, especially a nation like this; for in Britain the staple commodity owes the wealth and render her the arbitress of the world. See a treatise on 323, by John Mills, of the Royal Society of London.

I beg your pardon for but we must determine independent by our means.

I have the honor to with very great esteem the president's signature.

PETER BAR

P. S. Add to the above all the English sheep, and their wool to good lessons for our legislators.

The Vienna Court Gazette, February, 1803, contains an article:

Among the experiments in rural economy, which merit publication, are those of countess Ho of the estates and lordship family. This economical sheepwalks in Hungary, try four thousand sheep breed. See the Penny No. 3774, April 20, 1801.

To constitute a capital of the first com- pany of the American Shepherd's subscrip- tion for shares therein, at one Spanish dol- lar each, payable at the time of subscrip- tion, or on demand is proposed.

Any state, commonwealth, person, partnership, society, church, or body po- litic, may subscribe for as many shares in the company of American Shepherds, as he, she or they think proper.

Perhaps no moment of time can be more proper than the present to establish the wool trade in America. Perhaps the fol- lowing observations may have occurred to you before, if not, I trust you will pay them such attention as they may seem to you to deserve.

1. That in England, they reckon sheep the basis of agriculture: therefore, if a farmer there keeps no sheep, they predict his destiny. See John Spurrer's Practical Farmer, &c. page 186.

2. Again Hej says sheep are a cattle that are kept at the least expence of any to the farmer, and will thrive upon al- most any ground, and for this reason they ought to be preferred before the larger cattle. Idem. page 266.

3. That anonymous author, speaking of the utility of sheep, says, England flows its present strength to their attention to these important little animals, as a motto of which their judges and rulers are seated on sacks of wool. See the American Daily Advertiser, &c. dated May 8, 1798, number 5957, printed by David C. and Septimus Claypoole.

4. That an English writer, speaking of sheep says, in effect, there is not any one domestic creature, which yields greater profit to man than sheep do. Their wool is the chief object, especially to a commer- cial nation like this; for of it is formed in Britain the staple commodity to which she owes the wealth and grandeur that render her the arbitress of power in Eu- rope. See a treatise on cattle, &c. page 323, by John Mills, esq. fellow of the Royal Society of London.

I beg your pardon for my importunity, but we must determine to be happy and independent by our means and resources.

I have the honor to be, with very great esteem, the president's suppliant, &c.

PETER BARKER, Senior.

P. S. Add to the above cited obser- vations all the English laws relative to sheep, and their wool trade; being very good lessons for our legislature.

The Vienna Court Gazette of the 13th February, 1803, contains the following article:

Among the experiments and progress in rural economy, which, for their uti- lity, merit publication, were distinguish- ed those of counsellor Holmaister, director of the estates and lordships of the Imperial family. This economist has, in his sheepwalks in Hungary, more than twenty four thousand sheep of the Spanish breed. See the Pennsylvania Gazette, No. 3774, April 20, 1803.

The Shepherd's theory; or the right management of sheep delineated, in a let- ter to the American farmers, by Pastor Americanus.

Philadelphia, June 9, 1803.

Citizens!

Let it be supposed that 200 ewes, more or less, manure one acre of land per day, worth 30 shillings per acre, or 547l. 10s. per annum.

Each ewe gives 5 pounds of wool, worth 3 shillings per pound, or 15 shillings per ewe, per annum, consequently 200 ewes give 150l. per annum.

Each ewe gives one lamb per annum, worth 3 dollars, or 20 shillings each, consequently 200 lambs give 200l. per annum.

Manure,	547	10	0
Wool,	150	0	0

Errors excepted, £. 897 10 0

Being the amount of the American far- mer's annual loss: so always and provid- ed that he does not keep 200 ewes.

N. B. Pastor Americanus says, intrust me with a flock of good ewes, grafs, hay, &c. and I will give the right use and man- ner of realising my said theory, and pledge all my wages to perform it.

To confirm the said theory, and ma- nagement of sheep, I appeal to facts, and experiments.

1. To General Washington's. 2. To the North Carolina Farmer's Experi- ments. 3. To John Spurrer's System of Husbandry. 4. To Varlo's ditto. 5. To Ellis's ditto. 6. To Mill's ditto. 7. To the English Practice of Raising Sheep. 8. To the Spanish do. 9. To the Swedish ditto. 10. To the Flem- ing's, do. &c.

Among the ancient women of high re- nown, raising sheep was a favorite study: they did not disdain to put their own hands to the stone on the well, and re- member this, that a blessing did always accompany their study. See the Old Tes- tament and the New.

You see then clearly that the study of raising sheep is very lucrative, honorary and blessed. And these were shepherds abidings in the fields, keeping watch over their flocks by night, and lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them: and the glory of the Lord shown round about them: and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, fear not: for behold I bring you glad tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto us is born this day, in the city of David, a Savior, which is Christ the Lord.

So the Lord blessed the latter end of Job more than his beginning: for he had four- teen thousand sheep. But to leave this dig- ression, and proceed.

In former times, "the wealth of nobi- lity, gentry and monastries consisted chiefly in wool, which also then made the bulk of private property at home. It was at the same time the prime article in commerce. Aids to the crown were granted therein. It supplied the demands for the support of armies. The payment of subsidies, and all other expences in- curred on the account of the public in foreign parts," says he learned Dr. Campbell, in vol. 2, page 152, of his excellent political survey of Great Britain.

O foolish Americans! who hath be- witched you that ye should not believe the truth, before whose eyes it hath thus been evidently set forth.

They informed him, that WAR had com- menced between England, France and Hol- land! Off Havana, spoke the brig John and Mary, Purvis. Capt. P. informed us, that the day before he left the Belise, a vessel arrived there from Jamaica after a short passage, and brought intelligence that war had actually commenced between England and France, and that the English and French fleets had met; that five sail of French ships of the line were taken, and that a hot press had commenced at Jamaica Off Havana, and afterwards, off the Capes of Florida, saw a large ship under jymasts, in tow of two schooners which we since learned, was the ship Kingston, of London, from Jamaica, hav- ing lost her mails off Cape Antonia. One of the towing schooners was the Supply, of New York. It is expected the King- ston will be brought into this port the en- suing week, as it was their intention to come in here. Anti-Democrat, of Baltimore, By GEORGE L. GRAY.

THIS paper is published three times a week, price to subscribers Five Dollars per annum, payable in advance.

THE avowed and constant object of the Republican, or Anti-Democrat, has al- ways been, and is, to combat the errone- ous principles, and to expose the glaring falsehoods of the democratic party, which in this country has long endeavoured, and now threatens, to overturn the constitu- tion, and destroy the happiness of the Uni- ted States. The extensive circulation and great patronage which it has hitherto met with, are strong proofs of the estimation in which it has always been held, and there is no reason to fear that under its present Editor it will lose any of its spir- it, or neglect any of the duties it has im- posed upon itself, in defence of the dearest rights of Americans.

SEVERAL of the papers containing the original Address of the Editor, have been forwarded to gentlemen in Alexandria. Those who desire to become subscribers are informed that he has appointed Cotton and Stewart his agents here, and autho- rized them to give receipts for any money paid to them on account of the paper.

June 16.

Late last night, as the Mail Stage, was coming from George Town to this place, an attempt was made by two vil- lains, to rob it of the baggage belonging to the passengers. One of them seized the horses and attempted to stop them, while the other busied himself in cutting the baggage ropes, but fortunately there hap- pened to be a person in the stage who had presence of mind sufficient to call to the driver for his pistols, at which they made off without effecting their purpose.

Letters as late as the 22d of May are received from New Orleans, by the Au- gusta, arrived on Saturday. These state, that in consequence of the Restoration of the Deposit, business had greatly revived. We have not learnt whether the opening of the port was the result of the arrange- ment of the Prefect, Governor, & Marquis de Calvo, or whether it was the effect of the dispatch forwarded by the Marquis de Casta Yrujo. (Rel's Phil. Gaz.)

It has been currently reported for this fortnight past, that advices from Europe, stated that Egypt had been ceded to France, by the Turkish government. That information to this amount is con- tained in private letters, cannot be doubt.

ed. If the intelligence be true, we are inclined to believe, that this subject more than any other, is the ground of the pre- sent dispute between England and France. (ibid.)

DIRECTIONS FOR VESSELS.

Bound from the southward of Exuma Salt- Pond, situated to the eastward of the port and harbor of Exuma, from which it is distant between three and four leagues.

From the Bird Rock (the northern ex- tremity of Crooked Island) to the north end of Long Island, the course is N. W. distant 25 leagues. Give this a good birth, say one or two miles on account of two reefs (easily distinguished) which ex- tend from the two points of the north end. From thence haul up S. W. by S. This course will bring you on Soundings, when you will see Hog Key and Little Exuma, on both of which are settlements. There are several rocks or small keys ranging with the coast, these may be kept close aboard. When you see the house distinctly, hoist your colors and a boat will be sent out to bring the vessels to the anchorage at the Pond. The Pond is to the end of Pigeon Key, bears from the north end of Long Island, due S. W. and by W. distant 9 leagues. Storking Island, which forms the harbor of Exuma, is dis- tinguishable by a beacon on the highest eminence, and this is about 5 or 6 miles to the westward of the eastern entrance of the harbor. The east side of Long Is- land is a bold shore, and wholly free from reefs and funken rocks.

If you go round the north end of Long Island towards evening, it may frequent- ly be advisable to come to an anchor, to avoid the effects of currents during the night, which may easily be done on very good ground, after doubling round the north end, any where under the lee of the land for several miles along shore. In this case the eye must direct you, the weather being perfectly clear and the bot- tom visible.

The following courses and distances are subjoined, as they may at times be serv- iceable, and the charts are not to be de- pended on.

From bird Rock to south end of Long Is- land, W. 11 leagues.

Rum Key to north end of Rong Is- land, W. 7 or 8 leagues.

Little Island to north end of Long Island S. W. 4 leagues.

Bird Rock to Rum Key, N. N. W. 16 leagues.

Rum Key to Watling's Island N. E. 6 or 7 leagues.

SINGULARITY OF RESEARCH.

AN EXTRACT.

"There is perhaps, no one principle in human nature that leads to greater conse- quences, than the concentration of applica- tion to singular research."

"But this, like every other principle, has occasionally strange and useless termi- nations, that may be called lotus naturae in mortals. As an instance of this, I will present you with the result of a man's la- bor for three years, eight or nine hours a day, Sundays not excepted, to determine the verses, words, and letters contained in the Bible."

Verses,	31,173
Words,	773,692
Letters,	3,566,480

The middle and the last chapter is the 117th Psalm.

The middle verse is the 8th verse of the 101st Psalm.

Jehovah is named 6,855 times. The middle one of these Jehovah's is in se- cond Chronicles, fourth chapter and 16th verse.

The word and is found in the Bible 46,227 times.

The last verse in the Old Testament, is in first Chronicles, first and 10th verses. The last in the New Testament, 11th chap- ter of John, 35th verse.

"I look upon this to be a very singular occurrence in the history of human nature, that there should be found a man, who, merely for the sake of employment, should spend three years on such a task."
